Linsey Jamieson – Associate Case Manager – Midlands

Linsey Jamieson is a full-time case manager, she has worked at AJCM since September 2016. She is a qualified teacher with a wide range of experience supporting young people with complex disabilities, within both mainstream and specialist educational settings. For 6 years Linsey co-ordinated education, therapy and life skills programmes, at a large specialist college, for clients with a wide range of complex disabilities, including young people with traumatic brain injuries, multiple disabilities, mild to severe learning difficulties and co-existing mental health difficulties.

As a Case Manager, Linsey has a strong track record of ensuring successful outcomes for clients such as achieving sustainable work outcomes, developing independent living skills, obtaining the right support to be successful in education, securing suitable accommodation and planning holidays abroad and in the UK.

She has built up a wealth of experience in incorporating education, therapy and life skills goals, in order to support people to successfully transition into living in the community, sustainable and meaningful work and increasing their independence. This includes extensive liaison with families, statutory services and large multi-disciplinary teams. She has an excellent understanding of statutory services, access to education, developing 'Education, Health & Care Plans', and adapting educational provision to meet the needs of a child or young adult with a brain injury.

Linsey is adept at setting functional goals, always working in a person-centred manner and understanding how client's needs will develop and change over time. She has a wealth of experience working with clients with limited communication, users of AAC and clients with multiple and complex disabilities. She is a skilled manager, with an approachable manner and a pro-active and creative approach to problem solving. Linsey's skill set and previous experience means she is well equipped to support children and young adult clients, particularly those transitioning between different education settings, new accommodation or into voluntary or paid work.

She worked as a volunteer listener with Samaritans for four years and has implemented active listening strategies and a sound awareness of mental health issues to support clients, and their families, in a holistic and sensitive manner. Linsey is committed to ensuring that her clients are placed at the centre of decision making and that they are working towards functional and achievable goals, with an encouraging and committed support team behind them.

"Whilst working with Linsey on a brain injury case involving complex sensitive family and cultural points I found her to be reliable, resourceful and extremely helpful. Linsey was not fazed by difficult discussions and was a real asset to the team whilst moving P into suitable and well-resourced accommodation."

"We were apprehensive about having a Case Manager assigned to us, but after choosing Linsey from her details and meeting her at her interview we wonder how we ever managed without her. Linsey is very approachable and always has our daughters' best interest at heart. Her knowledge and assistance with regards to child education has been extremely valuable to us and we know anything that may crop up during our daughter's school life she will have an answer or solution to. Linsey will put forward things to help and assist our daughter in everyday life, that in turn helps us as Parents and a family too, this is all done suggestively and there is never any pressure to commit if we do not feel it is right at that moment in time. We cannot thank her enough for the help we have received so far and we look forward in continuing to work with Linsey in the years to come."
